Such personal hunches when uttered publicly by a Kennedy can count for a lot of votes, and Kathleen is not unaware of her value as a campaign symbol. Up onstage election night, being introduced by a grateful and victorious George McGovern, Kathleen Kennedy drew applause second only to the candidate himself. Would she like to run for office? Framingham — Rep. Edward M. Kennedy, Democrat of Massachusetts, today defended Speaker Thomas P. "Tip" O'Neill, and "the House of Representatives." He called O'Neill "a man of courage and a man of principle." Mr. Kennedy reminded the House of O'Neill's accomplishments as Speaker of the House of Representatives and as President pro tempore of the Senate.

Mr. Kennedy said O'Neill's record was "unmatched by any other Speaker in our history." He added that O'Neill had "performed his duties with distinction and with a sense of responsibility."

FRAMINGHAM — Edward M. Kennedy yesterday described Rep. Robert F. Drinan, (D-Mass.) as "perhaps the finest and most effective first-term Congressman in the House of Representatives."

Kennedy campaigned with Drinan in the 4th Congressional District, where Drinan — a Jesuit priest — is seeking a second term.

He described as Drinan’s “most impressive accomplishment” his success in convincing House Democrats last spring to force the Foreign Affairs Committee to report out anti-war legislation.

Brooke Sees Impeachment

Sen. Edward W. Brooke said last night President Nixon's failure to comply completely with the subpoena demands issued by the House Judiciary Committee would be grounds for impeachment.

At a press conference, preceding his appearance as chief speaker at the 17th annual Law Day dinner, sponsored by the Boston College Law School and its Alumni Assn., at the Copley Plaza, Brooke made the following points:

- The President should cooperate with the Judiciary Committee.
- The estimate might turn up something that would be used in the implementation of the state balance plan.
- One year ago, the government found evidence of President Nixon's failure to comply completely with the subpoena demands issued by the House Judiciary Committee.

"I think the President's advisers have always felt that they should take the case to the public directly rather than to the Constitutional bodies" set up to handle the matter, Brooke said.

The greetings of the Commonwealth were brought by Atty. Gen. Robert Quinn, who urged his listeners not to be turned away from political activities by Watergate.

In his address to the 1000 bar and bench leaders attending the dinner, Brooke said: "The invasion of privacy as interest for American connections, the participation of the people in the erosion of democracy."
their hands, there was an embarrassed shuffling, and a white-haired professor in the third row declared loudly in Russian: "That question is a provocation" and waved his fist at the senator.

In White's way is a Kennedy

There is more to that Edward Kennedy-Kevin White competition than meets the eye. They are of an age. White is 44, Kennedy is 42. When Kennedy the brother of the President, was moving to Washington as United States senator, White was stewing in the office of the Secretary of State wondering how he could get by the heavy hitters of the Democratic party in the state—men like Francis Bellotti, Endicott Peabody, John Collins—and run for governor or mayor of Boston.

White is a totally political man. He grew up on the politics of Charlestown and West Roxbury. His father was a member of the Boston School Committee and his mother came from a family deeply involved with who was elected to what office from Charlestown.

Kennedys went to Harvard. White went to Williams. White had a taste of being something better than a state representative from West Roxbury. But along the way he kept bumping into that Kennedy magic. He could find no way—

As Jefferson noted in his guide to the House, "An impeachment is not discontinued by the dissolution of the House only means delay reconvened in November, the House drafted the articles of impeachment and the Senate picked up the process from there. It wasn't until January, 1799, that the Senate determined it had no jurisdiction to try Blount since he had resigned from the Senate and was no longer a civil officer subject to impeachment. The interruption was between the first and second session of the same.

When the 8th Congress convened for its first session on Oct. 17, 1803, the proceedings against Pickering continued without a lost step with the appointment of a committee to draft the articles of impeachment.

During the impeachment of Supreme Court Justice Samuel Chase in 1804, an eight-month congressional recess intervened between.

Judge says he, not Nixon, has the final say

By Robert S. Boyd
Knight News Service

WASHINGTON—Federal Judge Gerhard Gesell yesterday rejected President Nixon’s claim to have the final say in deciding what evidence he will or won’t make available for the trial of Mr. Nixon’s former assistant counsel John Dean.

Judge Gesell said, “If the court determines that production of any document is required, that document must be produced.”

St. Clair had sent a letter to the White House “plumbers” as scheduled later this month. The worst time to trust politics ever for it. But during these times, people are asking for more candor from politicians. The court of public opinion.

O'Neill says Nixon obstructed justice

WASHINGTON — House Majority Leader Thomas P. "Tip" O'Neill (D-Mass.) said yesterday that portions of the edited White House transcripts which he has read have convinced him that President Nixon was guilty of obstructing justice in his attempts to thwart a 1972 investigation by the House Banking Committee into campaign irregularities.

But O'Neill declined to say whether he thought the President's impeachment bill probably would be sent to the House floor either immediately before or after the July 4 holidays and that the debate would begin in the "third or fourth week in July." There would be no limit on debate.

O'Neill said he expected the debate to last about two weeks, after which Judiciary Chairman Peter Rodino (D-N.J.), would offer a motion to shut off any further debate within 48 hours. At the expiration of the 48 hours, O'Neill said...

Tough politics

Robert E. Drinan, a Boston law professor who is an anti-war activist and a member of the House Judiciary Committee, said this week that the Watergate scandal is "a national tragedy" and that the president's actions have brought the country to "the brink of a constitutional crisis." He added that the impeachment process is "too important to be left in the hands of politicians."
